From the Desk of the President

Jamie Wolitarsky, D.D.S

Greetings All,

“Knock on wood”, or at least some denture acrylic; spring may finally be upon us! As the change of season occurs, springtime ushers in our Society’s annual business meeting and installation of officers. This year’s meeting/dinner will be at The Inn Keepers Kitchen on the evening of Friday, May 10th.

Last year’s event was a huge success and this year’s meeting is selling out quickly. There is still time to sign up, so don’t miss out!

As I write this final letter of my Presidency, I would like to thank our wonderful and caring colleagues who volunteer their time and effort on the behalf of our Dental Society. Many of Chester/Delaware’s board members and officers have been serving our membership for a significant number of years. Without the commitment of these professionals, the immense resources available to our membership would fall by the wayside.

The future belongs to those who embrace it head-on. To that end, the future of our Dental Society is in the hands of its members. The leadership in place today will, and must, evolve with the changing demands placed on our profession. As I leave my post, I challenge the members of this Society, both young and old, to rise the forefront and lead The Dental Society of Chester County and Delaware County boldly into a future of our own making.

It has been an honor to serve as your President. As always, please reach out to me or any of our Board Members if you would like to get involved more directly with the Society.

All the Best,

Jamie Wolitarsky, DDS

ADA NEWS Proposed new ADA standards available for review April 03, 2019

The ADA Standards Committee on Dental Products is seeking comments on the following proposed standards:

- Proposed revision of ADA Standard No. 119, Manual Toothbrushes. This newly revised standard presents requirements and test methods for the physical properties of manual toothbrushes to assist in making sure these products are safe for their intended use. A test method for determining the resistance of the tufted portion to deflection is included.
- Proposed revision of ADA Standard No. 139, Dental Base Polymers. This newly revised standard classifies various types of denture base polymers, including heat-polymerizable materials, auto-polymerizable materials, thermoplastic blank or powder, light-activated materials and microwave-cured materials and specifies the requirements and test methods for their physical properties. It also specifies requirements for the products' packaging and the instructions provided for their use.

- Proposed ADA Technical Specification No. 150, Method for Determination of Polymerization Shrinkage Stress of Polymer-based Restorative Materials. This new specification provides a simple and easy-to-use test method for documenting a claim of measurement for the polymerization shrinkage stress developed under clinically relevant conditions and describes the instrument to be used. Polymerization shrinkage stress generated because of constrained volumetric shrinkage upon curing of polymeric restorative materials can significantly impair the integrity of the tooth-restorative interface and reduce the clinical longevity of dental restorations.
- Proposed ADA Standard No. 158,

Coupling Dimensions for Dental Handpiece Connectors. This new standard classifies the coupling systems manufactured to connect handpieces to motors that are connected to dental units. The standard specifies the dimensions, tolerances, the extraction force of coupling systems and the test methods to be used.

The ADA Standards Committee on Dental Products develops standards for dental materials, oral hygiene products, infection control products, dental equipment, dental instruments, CAD/CAM and more. Standards for dental materials, instruments and equipment are formulated by working groups of the committee. The committee has representation from all interests in the U.S. in the standardization of materials, instruments and equipment in dentistry.

To obtain copies or make comments on the standards, call 1-312-440-2506 or email standards@ada.org
